

UNDERGRADUATE 3-CREDIT COURSES

EDSE 115 American Sign Language I

EDSE 116 American Sign Language II

EDSE 219 American Sign Language III

GRADUATE 3-CREDIT COURSES

EDSE 515 American Sign Language I

EDSE 516 American Sign Language II

EDSE 519 American Sign Language III

Learn American Sign Language (ASL) and earn college credit!

American Sign Language is the primary language of many North Americans who are deaf and is also one of several communication options used by people who are deaf or hard-of-hearing. A knowledge of ASL offers you an opportunity to set yourself apart when pursuing a career in health, education, or other fields.

Take one, two, or all three American Sign Language courses at George Mason University to learn how to better communicate with family, friends, clients, students, and others who are deaf or hard-of-hearing. You'll also gain insight into the rich culture and history of the Deaf community.

Register today. Courses fill quickly!

Fulfills Mason's foreign language requirement

ASL is a three-semester sequence that meets the foreign language requirement for majors for which there is such a requirement.

(over)

EMAIL AN ADVISOR AT:
speced@gmu.edu

AMERICAN SIGN LANGUAGE

College of Education and Human Development

Division of Special Education and disAbility Research

4400 University Drive – MS 1F2
Fairfax, VA 22030

tel 703-993-3670
email speced@gmu.edu

Download the latest version of this flyer at: <http://cehd.gmu.edu/asl>

The College of Education and Human Development (CEHD) at George Mason University inspires undergraduate and graduate students to promote learning and development across the life span. The college offers a full range of courses, certificates, and degree programs on campus, online, and on site to more than 4,000 students each year. CEHD is fully accredited by NCATE and all licensure programs are approved by the Virginia Department of Education.

George Mason University, located just outside of Washington, DC, is Virginia's largest public research university.

More reasons to learn ASL

Learning another language promotes mental flexibility. Learning American Sign Language is no different! You'll experience a different way of expression compared to spoken language while gaining a new appreciation and understanding for how other languages are structured.

Course descriptions

■ American Sign Language I

Undergraduate course number: EDSE 115

Graduate course number: EDSE 515

In this course, you'll learn basic person-to-person conversational signing. The course emphasizes the development of expressive and receptive skills as well as ASL vocabulary, syntax, semantics, and language pragmatics. Students also will explore issues of multiculturalism, linguistic code-switching, and language dominance.

■ American Sign Language II

Undergraduate course number: EDSE 116

Graduate course number: EDSE 516

This course focuses on intermediate level skills in American Sign Language. You'll gain increased competency in person-to-person conversational signing and more in-depth knowledge of ASL vocabulary, syntax, semantics, and language pragmatics. Students also will explore in greater depth the history and culture of the Deaf community and different modalities of communication used in Deaf education programs.

■ American Sign Language III

Undergraduate course number: EDSE 219

Graduate course number: EDSE 519

This course focuses on strengthening expressive and receptive communication through the development of narrative and storytelling skills. You'll also learn about the importance of these skills within the Deaf community and will study how ASL, accessibility issues, and more have influenced laws and policies in different areas of the world.

Transferring ASL course work

If you have recently taken an ASL course at another college, university, or high school, you may be able to transfer the credits, test out, and/or enroll at a higher level than EDSE 115 (or EDSE 515 for graduate students). Please contact speced@gmu.edu for more information.

EMAIL AN ADVISOR AT:
speced@gmu.edu