Email: esturtev@gmu.edu (preferred).
Mailing address: CEHD, MS 4B3, George Mason University, 4400 University Drive, Fairfax, VA 22030
Office Hours: by appointment
Class time and location: T/Th 4:30-7:10  Thompson 1507.

Note: please leave an email or voicemail if you must miss class due to an emergency.

Professional Association Standards (that are met through this course)- N/A Nature of course delivery: primarily face-to-face with one or two online meetings.

TaskStream Requirement – Not applicable

Perspective:
This course will be taught from an inquiry-oriented perspective, in that students will have the opportunity to develop and explore their own questions in a way that makes sense given their work to this point in the Ph.D. program. As part of this process, each individual will propose and conduct a project based on her or his own interests and learning needs.

Student Outcomes:
A. Students will read and analyze research studies and research reviews related to adolescent and young adult literacy.
B. Students will provide leadership for colleagues in class discussions.
C. Students will develop questions regarding adolescent and adult literacy and will create a scholarly paper to address those questions.
D. Students will develop an historical understanding of the field.
E. Students will develop an increased understanding of ways to participate in the academic community.

Texts:
- Readings listed in syllabus (available from library).
- Students will also need access to the American Psychological Association Manual, 6th Edition.
COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND EVALUATION METHODS:

1. Complete all course readings before the related class (see schedule). Please bring a copy of the reading to class as we will refer to it during discussion. If you like, your copy can be electronic if you bring a laptop to class.

2. Complete any assigned pre/during/post reading activities. These will be decided by instructor or class members leading discussions on a week-by-week basis. Some of this work may be out-of-class and/or online and some will be in-class.

3. Critique a research article. 20% (See Blackboard and Appendix A of revised syllabus). July 2.

4. Lead a discussion in class on the article you critiqued. Distribute the article on Thursday of the prior week and give class members a short activity to complete before, during OR after reading. (See content area reading texts for suggestions). They will bring this to class as it will lead into the discussion. Week of July 7. 20%

5. Write a short paper demonstrating your breadth of knowledge OR prepare an AERA proposal based on your paper or earlier work 20%. Last class. May submit earlier for feedback.

6. Write a paper (15-18 pages) related to an adolescent literacy topic that demonstrates your understanding of research on a focused topic. Present your topic to the class. 40% Parts will have specific due dates. Further guidance will be given. July 15 via blackboard.

7. Participation – attend all classes and participate actively. If an emergency prevents attendance, please discuss the situation with the instructor.

Additional Suggested Reading (some of the below are required- see schedule).

Alvermann, D. E. (2004). Effective Literacy Instruction for Adolescents. Available online at www.nrconline.org. (Published as a white paper for the National Reading Conference and also as an article in the Journal of Literacy Research).

SUGGESTED JOURNALS

Literacy related:

GMU Policies and Resources for students

a. Students must adhere to the guidelines of the George Mason University Honor Code [See http://oai.gmu.edu/the-mason-honor-code/].

b. Students must follow the university policy for Responsible Use of Computing [See http://universitypolicy.gmu.edu/policies/responsible-use-of-computing/]

c. Students are responsible for the content of university communications sent to their George Mason University email account and are required to activate their account and check it regularly. All communication from the university, college, school, and program will be sent to students solely through their Mason email account.

d. The George Mason University Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) staff consists of professional counseling and clinical psychologists, social workers, and counselors who offer a wide range of services (e.g., individual and group counseling, workshops and outreach programs) to enhance students' personal experience and academic performance [See http://caps.gmu.edu/].

e. Students with disabilities who seek accommodations in a course must be registered with the George Mason University Office of Disability Services (ODS) and inform their instructor, in writing, at the beginning of the semester [See http://ods.gmu.edu/].

f. Students must follow the university policy stating that all sound emitting devices shall be turned off during class unless otherwise authorized by the instructor.

g. The George Mason University Writing Center staff provides a variety of resources and services (e.g., tutoring, workshops, writing guides, handbooks) intended to support students as they work to construct and share knowledge through writing [See http://writingcenter.gmu.edu/].

2. Professional Dispositions
   Students are expected to exhibit professional behaviors and dispositions at all times.

3. Core Values Commitment
   The College of Education & Human Development is committed to collaboration, ethical leadership, innovation, research-based practice, and social justice. Students are expected to adhere to these principles. http://cehd.gmu.edu/values/

Critique and Discussion of a Research Study

A critique consists of a discussion of a research study and its results followed by your comments (called “critical comments”) about the strengths and weaknesses of the study.

A critique should include the following sections:
- Reference – put at the top of page 1
- Purpose
- Method
- Results
- Conclusions
- Critical comments

A critique should be brief (no more than 2 typed, single-spaced pages)

The reference for the article being critiqued should be in APA style (6th edition).

Method refers to how the study was conducted. In this section you should briefly describe what was done in the study. The following questions cover some of the information that is important.

- (for quantitative studies) What variables were studied? How was each variable measured?
- (for qualitative studies) What questions were studied? What methods of data collection were used?
- What was the size of the sample or who were the participants? How were the participants or sample selected? What are the demographics/characteristics of the sample/participants?
- How long did the investigation last?
- How were the data analyzed?

In the Results section, briefly describe what was found in the study and the conclusions the investigator drew from the findings.

The last section, critical comments, is very important. In this section, you have the opportunity to comment on the value of the research as conceptualized, conducted, and reported and on the practical value of the research for teachers, students, and schools. Though both strengths and weaknesses are included in this section, it is not appropriate to discuss only the strengths of a study. Every study has some weaknesses. Look for them as you read the study and describe them in your critique.

Think about the following issues: 1) new conceptual contributions of the study; 2) new methodological contributions of the study; 3) validity of the study; 4) research design, 5) the adequacy of the written report and suggestions for improvement, 6) suggestions for future research directions and effort.
